CONGRATULATION.

THE Committee of the Class of 1846, appointed at the second Class Meeting after graduation, July 30, 1856, to prepare some memorials of the Class and its members, congratulate the Class on their appointment, and on the circumstances, influences and characteristics that prevented their executing the work assigned. For various reasons the preparation was so long delayed that the whole matter would have been referred to another meeting of the Class, with a report of progress (?), but for the special interest taken in the matter by Dr. J. W. Barstow. The Committee take great pleasure in laying before the Class the accompanying results of his interested labor. The work announces itself as his. His observant eye, his warm, retentive memory, his graceful hand, will be recognized on every page. At the approaching Class Meeting the Class will have opportunity to express their sense of the value of his services; and also to vote thanks to the Committee for having prepared the way, by their fidelity, for his intervention.

The pamphlet is brought out in anticipation of the third meeting of the Class, to be held July 21, 22 and 23, 1863. Let the reception of a copy of this pamphlet be a renewed notice of the meeting, and a warning to each Classmate to appear in person, or report himself seasonably by letter to the Secretary.

DAETMOUTH COLLEGE, June 24, 1863.

EXPLANATION.

To my Classmates, and especially to the Committee of Publication, a word of apology may be due for my share in this work. It was commenced long ago, with the design merely of aiding the Committee in the collection of materials. But the request being at length made, that I would complete the manuscript according to the plan commenced, I have endeavored to do so, at the risk, perhaps, of being charged with officiousness.

My hope is, however, that this may be forgiven by the Class, in view of the honest effort to save their names from oblivion, in the pages, even, of an imperfect history.

MINUTES OF CLASS MEETINGS.

1846.

At a meeting of the Senior Class, in Society Hall, a few days before Commencement, it was Voted, That the first regular Class Meeting, after graduation, be held in 1849, at Commencement.

1849.

On the morning of July 26 (Commencement day) a preliminary meeting of the Class was accordingly held in Society Hall, at which it was voted "To meet at 7 P. M. at the rooms of Bro. Weeks (Mr. Markham's house)."

At 7 o'clock there were present the following members; namely, Aiken, Barstow, Blaisdell, McClure, Weeks, Wellman.

Partridge had been in attendance upon some of the Commencement exercises, but was not present at this meeting.

Weeks was called to the Chair, and Aiken was requested to serve as Secretary. It was suggested that we appoint a permanent Secretary of the Class, not only to note the proceedings of our occasional meetings, but more especially to record, as accurately as they may be traced, the future course and history of each member, and to collect such memorials of each as he may, for use at our meetings and for private reference. The proposition was adopted, and Aiken was chosen Secretary.

It was also agreed, that each member shall consider it his duty to advise the Secretary, from time to time, of his whereabouts, especially in case of a change of residence, and to make early report of any event of special interest occurring in his personal history.

The remainder of the hour was spent in discussing College days, their recollections being yet comparatively fresh, and in exchanging information of absent brethren. The meeting was interrupted by the arrival of the hour for the Levee, at the College Libraries. *

It was voted "That the next Class Meeting be held at Commencement, in 1856, and that the members be expected to bring with them their wives and children."

The Secretary attempts no report of the pleasant conversation which occupied most of the hour of meeting, as such things are not to be transferred to paper. Suffice it to say, that the members separated with deeper interest in each other, and a confirmed conviction that the Class of 1846 will perform its part in the active duties of life, without disappointment of the high hopes entertained of it during their College course.

Thus ended the first Class Meeting, in 1849.

C. A. AIKEN, Secretary.

1856.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE, July 30.

According to the vote of 1849, the Class of 1846 held its second meeting in Society Hall, this day, at 8 A. M.

Dr. J. W. Barstow was chosen to preside at this and subsequent meetings of the Class during the day.

Nothing was attempted at this preliminary meeting beyond making arrangements for a supper, this evening, at the Dartmouth Hotel, in connection with which all reports of members, both absent and present, shall be given in and recorded. Dr. E. H. Parker and Benjamin F. Ayer, Esq., were appointed a Committee of Arrangements.

Voted, That special friends from other Classes, who may be present at Commencement, shall also be invited to the supper.

The Secretary, Rev. C. A. Aiken, offered his resignation, which, however, was subsequently withdrawn.

Adjourned to meet at 9½ o'clock P. M. (after the concert and fireworks), at the Hall of the Dartmouth Hotel.

There were present, either at the morning or the evening meeting, on this day, the following individuals, being a majority of the living members of the Class; namely,

Rev. CHARLES A. AIKEN, Yarmouth, Me.
GEORGE T. ANGELL, Esq., Boston, Mass.
BENJAMIN F. AYER, Esq., Manchester, N. H.
Dr. J. W. BARSTOW, Flushing, L. I.
Rev. J. J. BLAISDELL, Cincinnati, O.
GEORGE A. GORDON, Esq., Lawrence, Mass.
DANIEL S. HOUGH, Esq., New-York City.
Hon. M. C. MCCLURE, Claremont, N. H.
Dr. EDWARD H. PARKER, New-York City.
Rev. A. H. QUINT, Jamaica Plains, Mass.
Rev. ROGER M. SARGENT, Gilmanton, N. H.
Hon. ISAAC W. SMITH, Manchester, N. H.
Rev. JOSHUA W. WELLMAN, West Newton, Mass.

9.30 P. M. The Class reassembled according to adjournment. All the members above mentioned were present, excepting Blaisdell, who was obliged, on account of sickness in his family, to return during the afternoon to his friends in Lebanon.

While the good things prepared by the Committee were disappearing, past and present were familiarly discussed, old recollections revived, old nicknames re-applied, and the style of conversation slipped back insensibly into that of ten years ago. Each one recurred to the past and brought forth from his own stock of reminiscences some new incident or tale to add to the general fund of memories of the former days. Shall we allude to them here? Shall we speak again of those once absorbing questions in College politics, which caused aches of head and heart, sleepless nights, and bitterness of feeling? They have all passed away and left no trace. Shall we repeat the story of disputed elections, which thrilled societies to their center, and vexed the souls of ambitious candidates? Who but ourselves remember them now? Of the ancient bickerings and coups d'etat of secret societies, once threatening revolution, now a tradition and a joke of ten years ago. Surely, tempora mutantur, et nos mutamur in illis. The ghosts of former strifes, once so restless, are now happily laid by Time's conservative influence, and we are content to let them pass.

Other recollections there were, also, both general and personal, which could not fail to come up for a passing word in such an interview, as belonging to the history of our common past—incidents in chapel and recitation room; stories of walks to the “President’s Garden,” and even of visits to the President’s study; yarns of geologizing at Moose Mountain, and of pickerel taking at Goose Pond; annals of Handel Society and Flute Club, with mention of tender serenades and ambitious concerts; the ancient feuds “‘twixt town and gown”; the disputes with officious “tounleys,” when we were always right and they were always wrong; and the well remembered battles of the cow-pens. The Phalanx—its morning drills and half holidays for training; the ovation to the “slayer of Tecumseh”; the “muster up to Lyme”; the annual “swearing in” of officers by Col. Brewster, with the whole history of that redoubtable corps, from 1842 to its peaceful and triumphant end in Senior fall term—all this, and more of the same was recalled, if not recorded. Thus, during the hour, we traveled again over the incidents of our four College years—reminded successively of Freshmen trials, Sophomore sufferings, Junior temptations, and Senior triumphs.

The cloth being removed, the roll was called of all who had ever been members of the Class. Those present made full report for themselves, and for the absent ones the Secretary and other members of the Class gave account as they were able. So the big and the little hours passed on, until 4 o’clock on the morning of Commencement day.

It was voted that the members of the Class be requested to report themselves annually, to the Secretary, during Commencement week, so far as possible.

Voted, That the next Class Meeting be held in connection with the Commencement of 1863, and, also, that the Class meet again on the occasion of the Centennial Celebration of the founding of Old Dartmouth, in 1869.

Voted, That the history of this meeting, together with a brief history of the several members, be printed in pamphlet form for the use of the Class.

The Secretary (Rev. C. A. Aiken), Hon. I. W. Smith, and Rev. A. H. Quint, were appointed a committee to superintend this publication.

Finally, after singing “Auld Lang Syne” in full chorus, with hands joined around the table, the motion to adjourn for seven years was made and carried.

Thus ended the second Class Meeting, in 1856.

The facts communicated at the supper, and since collected, will be found incorporated in the individual sketches which make up the following pages.

It appears that three members of the Class, Tilton, McKeen, and Partridge, had died between the meetings of 1849 and 1856. To this sad list we must now add another, McClure, who died in 1860.

The number of living members is now twenty-four. Of these there are —

Clergymen,	8
Physicians,	2
Lawyers,	6
Teachers,	5
Editor,	1
Engaged in mercantile pursuits, &c.,	2
	24

Twenty-three of the Class have been married, and an account of fifty-five children has been received.

CHARLES AUGUSTUS AIKEN.

NAT. OCTOBER 30, 1827, }
MANCHESTER, Vt. }

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
DARTMOUTH COLLEGE.

The three years next succeeding graduation were spent in teaching in the Lawrence Academy, Groton, Mass., and at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

In October, 1849, he entered Andover Theological Seminary. This course of study was broken by a visit to Europe, which occupied the time from September, 1851, to April, 1853. This interval was passed mainly at the Universities of Halle and Berlin, in Prussia. The course of study resumed at Andover was completed in September, 1853.

October 19, 1854, he was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church in Yarmouth, Me., where he remained until July, 1859.

In 1856 he was appointed Professor of Biblical Literature in the Chicago Theological Seminary, then about to be opened, but declined the appointment.

In 1859 he was appointed Professor of Latin Language and Literature in Dartmouth College (vice Prof. E. D. Sanborn), which position he still holds.

October 17, 1854, he married Miss Sarah E. Noyes, of Andover, Mass.

LUTHER WILSON ANDERSON.

NAT. JUNE 12, 1822, {

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
BOSTON, MASS.

Soon after graduation he went to Pembroke, N. H., to engage in teaching in the Academy at that place, where he remained nine months. Next taught in Braintree, Mass., where he remained about the same length of time. He then went to Charlestown, Mass., teaching first as sub-master and afterward as head-master in the Winthrop Grammar School. In September, 1852, after four years of experience in Charlestown, he went to Boston and took the position of sub-master in the English High School. This position he still fills, a most useful and successful teacher.

May 25, 1853, he married Miss Annie Warren Stetson, daughter of Amos Warren Stetson, Esq., of Braintree, Mass.

GEORGE THORNDIKE ANGELL.

NAT. JUNE 5, 1823, }
SOUTHBRIDGE, MASS. }

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
} BOSTON, MASS.

Immediately after graduation Mr. Angell obtained a situation in the Mather Grammar School, in Boston, as usher, and about the same time commenced reading law, at intervals, in the office of Hon. Richard Fletcher. In the fall of 1849 he gave up his connection with the school, and entered the law office of Charles G. Loring, Esq., and for two years pursued the study of the law at the Cambridge Law School, and with Mr. Loring. He was then admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, and was immediately received into the law office of Hon. Richard Fletcher and Hon. Samuel E. Sewell, with whom he was associated in business, pleasantly and profitably, for several years. Subsequently, he formed a law partnership with Mr. Sewell, under the name of Sewell & Angell. This firm still continues, and does a lucrative business in the highest courts of the State—generally in the most difficult suits and of the greatest magnitude.

He has received the appointment of Commissioner, resident in Massachusetts, from every State and Territory in the Union. He has never been married; has kept entirely aloof from politics, and devoted himself entirely to his business, which, in consequence, can not have been otherwise than entirely successful.

He leads a quiet but useful life, and enjoys, in an eminent degree, the confidence of his professional brethren and of the community in which he resides.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN AYER.

NAT. APRIL 22, 1825, }
KINGSTON, N. H. }

PRESENT RESIDENCE,
CHICAGO, ILL.

On leaving College, he entered the law office of Hon. George W. Morrison, of Manchester, N. H., where he remained one year. He then spent a year in the Law School at Cambridge; after which he returned to Manchester, and after another year's study in the office of Mr. Morrison, was admitted to the New-Hampshire bar, at the session of the Superior Court, in Concord, in July, 1849. He at once opened an office in Manchester, and in 1850 he was elected Clerk of the Common Council for the city, which office he held for one year. In May, 1851, he formed a law partnership with the late Hon. Samuel H. Ayer, which was dissolved by the death of the latter, in October, 1853.

He was elected to the New-Hampshire House of Representatives in 1853. From 1853 to 1856 he held the office of Prosecuting Attorney for Hillsborough County. During a part of this time he was a law partner of Hon. Herman Foster, of Manchester.

In April, 1857, he removed to Chicago, Ill., where, in 1858, he was a member of the law firm of Stuart & Ayer. In 1861 he was appointed Corporation Attorney of the city, which office he still holds. In 1862 July 4, he delivered the oration at the public celebration held under the auspices of the municipal authorities of Chicago.

He was appointed to prepare the revised charter of the city of Chicago—afterward enacted by the Illinois Legislature—a work of 200 pages, which was most successfully accomplished. In 1863 he was appointed to revise the city ordinances of Chicago, a labor of much magnitude and importance, which was also most satisfactorily performed.

He married in Hanover, N. H., August 13, 1850, Miss Phebe T. Whipple, daughter of the late Hon. Thomas Whipple, of Wentworth, N. H.

[As we go to press we are saddened by the tidings that Mr. Ayer's wife died on the 1st June, 1863, of rapid consumption. He had, also, only two weeks previously, lost his youngest child. Mrs. Ayer was known personally to many of the Class, having resided in Hanover for several years previous to her marriage. No one who reads this sad announcement, will fail to recall her many rare attractions and excellencies, or refuse to offer heartfelt sympathy to our Classmate in his heavy bereavement.]

JOSIAH WHITNEY BARSTOW.

NAT. JUNE 21, 1826, }
KEENE, N. H. }

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
FLUSHING, L. I.

During the three years succeeding graduation he was engaged in teaching in Virginia, after which he entered upon the study of medicine in Hanover, N. H., under the instruction of Drs. Crosby, Peaslee, and Hubbard, and received the degree of M. D. at Dartmouth, in 1851. He spent the next two years in New-York City, serving successively as Assistant Physician in the New-York Hospital, and in the Penitentiary Hospital, Blackwell's Island.

In January, 1853, he received the offer from the Smithsonian Institute of appointment as Naturalist to Lieut. Gunnison's Pacific Railroad Expedition, which he did not accept, thus escaping the fate of that unfortunate party, who, in 1854, fell victims on the Plains to Comanche, or, as has since been proved, to Mormon barbarity.

In 1854 he accepted the appointment of Resident Physician at Sanford Hall (Private Asylum for the Insane), in Flushing, Long Island, where he still resides.

In 1862 he was elected Fellow of the New-York Academy of Medicine.

He married, June 21, 1860, Miss Flora Macdonald, daughter of the late Dr. James Macdonald, of Sanford Hall, Flushing.

JAMES JOSHUA BLAISDELL.

NAT. FEBRUARY 8, 1827, }
CANAAN, N. H. }
PRESENT RESIDENCE,
BELOIT, WIS.

After graduation he remained at Hanover as Resident Graduate, pursuing a course of reading, &c., until February, 1847, when he went to Montreal, where he was engaged in teaching for one year. His health proving unequal to the labor, he returned to the States and commenced the study of law in the office of his father, Judge Blaisdell, of Lebanon. In October, 1849, he exchanged the study of law for that of theology, and entered Andover Theological Seminary, where he graduated in 1852.

In the autumn of the same year he was engaged to preach in Cincinnati, O., and in February, 1853, was ordained and installed pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church in that city.

In 1855 he was elected a member of the Board of Directors of Lane Theological Seminary.

In 1859 he removed to Beloit, Wisconsin, having accepted the Professorship of Rhetoric and English Literature in the College at that place. In addition to his duties as professor, he also supplies the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church in Beloit. He is Superintendent of City Schools, and is also engaged in arranging the school system of the State.

He married, February 1, 1853, Miss Susan A. Allen, daughter of Dea. Abner Allen, of Lebanon, N. H.

CHILDREN.

JOSEPH MILLS CAVIS.

NAT. JULY 1, 1825, }
HOPKINTON, N. H. }

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
COLUMBIA, CAL.

On graduating he entered upon the study of law in the office of Hon. David Cross, of Manchester, N. H., where he remained until the Spring of 1848, when he went to Troy, N. Y., and completed his studies in the office of Messrs. Willard & Raymond, of that city. November 8, 1848, he was admitted to the New-York bar. February, 1849, he was admitted to the bar in Massachusetts, and went to Hadley (now Holyoke), being one of the first lawyers who settled in that place. He remained in Hadley four years, practicing his profession with success, and serving, also, during a portion of the time, as town-clerk. In 1852 he sailed for California, and opened a broker's office in Sacramento city, where he remained one year. His health becoming impaired he spent some time at the mines, and in the hunting of game in the Santa Clara valley for the San Francisco market. The change proved a fortunate one, both for his health and as a matter of pecuniary profit, and in 1856 he was able to resume his profession. He opened an office in Tuolumne, and in 1857 removed to Columbia, where he now resides, in the successful practice of the law. (Columbia is about 60 miles northeast of Stockton.)

In the fall of 1862 a newspaper was received from him, giving his address as "Fulton street, between Main and Broadway, Columbia, Cal." The same paper announced his election to the California State Senate.

In 1850 he married Miss Emma Chandler, of Hopkinton, N. H., and has one child, a daughter, now about 8 years of age.

BENJAMIN CHAPMAN CHASE.

CORNISH, N. H.		BANGOR, ME.

He entered Bangor Theological Seminary immediately after graduation, where he pursued a complete theological course, and graduated in August, 1849.

January 8, 1850, he was ordained pastor of the First Congregational Church in Camden, Me., where he remained seven years. His labors were most acceptable, and his success as a pastor was of the most flattering kind. In July, 1857, he removed to Attleborough, Mass., and was settled over the First Congregational Church in that place, where he remained nearly six years, and was dismissed to take charge of the Congregational Church in Oldtown, Me., in which relation he still continues. His present address is Bangor, Me.

He married, February 10, 1850, Miss Almeda Blanchard, of Bangor.

DOVER, N. H. }

PRESENT RESIDENCE,
CHARLESTON, S. C.

He spent a part of the year after graduation in teaching, and in the study of law with the Hon. John P. Hale, of Dover. In April, 1847, he commenced the practice of civil engineering at Lawrence, Mass., where he remained for two years in connection with the Atlantic Mills. He then spent some time in railroad engineering, and in April, 1857, accepted the post of engineer to the Lewiston Water Power Company, Lewiston Falls, Me., where he remained nearly three years.

He next went to Detroit, Mich., as draughtsman to the Locomotive Works in that city, where he spent a year. In September, 1855, he became editor and proprietor of the Sentinel, a newspaper published at Lawrence, Mass. He engaged actively in the political strifes of his County and State; and after two years of editorial experience at Lawrence, he removed, in 1857, to Charleston, South-Carolina, and accepted the position of assistant editor of the Charleston Mercury.

On the breaking out of the rebellion he embraced the cause of the Confederates, and obtained a commission as colonel in the rebel army.

He married, October 16, 1857, Miss Anne Farley Gordon, of Lawrence, Mass.
[No children reported.]

DANIEL STICKNEY HOUGH.

NAT. JULY 25, 1826, }
FRYEBURG, ME. }

PRESENT RESIDENCE,
KALAMAZOO, MICH.

After graduating he spent two years in teaching. In October, 1848, he entered Bangor Theological Seminary, where he remained one year. He then left the Seminary and entered upon the study of law with Hon. John A. Peters, of Bangor. He was admitted to the bar in Maine, in the Autumn of 1852, and removed at once to the Falls of St. Anthony, in the Territory of Minnesota, where he remained one year in the practice of his profession. He then removed to Fryeburg, Iowa.

In September, 1860, he abandoned law and went to Tecumseh, Mich., where, under the direction of Rt. Rev. Bishop McCoskey, of the Episcopal Church, he again commenced the study of theology. January 5, 1862, he was ordained to the Diaconate by Bishop McCoskey, in Detroit. He received and accepted a call to the charge of St. Luke's Church, Kalamazoo, Mich., in which place he still resides.

He married, October 16, 1862, Miss Harriet A. Patterson, daughter of Dr. M. A. Patterson, of Tecumseh, Mich.

ARTHUR WARD MARSHALL.

NAT. APRIL 9, 1822, }
HAMPSTEAD, N. H. }

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
KINGSTON, N. Y.

He spent the Winter succeeding graduation in teaching, and in the Spring of 1847 commenced the study of law in the office of Hon. Josiah Quincy, of Rumney, N. H. A severe neuralgic affection of the eyes compelled him, after a few months, to abandon study, and the next two years he spent in farming in his native town.

A change of climate being urged by his physicians, in the hope of giving permanent relief to his eyes, he sailed for Valparaiso, Chili, in June, 1849. There he resided for several years. His health having partially improved, he was able to devote himself to teaching, and opened a school for the children of English and American residents, in which he was very successful.

In April, 1859, he returned to his native land, after an absence of ten years.

In 1860 he opened a Female Boarding School at Kingston, N. Y., on the banks of the Hudson, where he still resides.

He married, in Valparaiso, Chili, December, 1854, Miss Caroline W. Trumbull, of Colchester, Conn.

EDWARD HAZEN PARKER.

NAT. MARCH 7, 1823, }
BOSTON, MASS. }

PRESENT RESIDENCE,
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.

Commenced the study of medicine immediately after graduation ; attended two courses of lectures in Hanover, and then entered the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, where he received the degree of M. D. in March, 1848. He served as Demonstrator of Anatomy at Bowdoin College during the Spring lectures of 1848, and in June following entered the South Boston Hospitals, serving for six months as assistant physician. In January, 1849, he settled in Concord, N. H., where he practiced his profession successfully for four years.

During his residence in Concord he established the New-Hampshire Medical Journal, and served as its editor. He was also a prominent member of the State Medical Society.

In August, 1853, he received the appointment of Professor of Physiology and Pathology, in the New-York Medical College, and removed to New-York City.

In January, 1854, he established the New-York Medical Monthly, and for several years conducted it with ability and success.

In 1856 he resigned his professorship to devote himself more entirely to private practice. He was for some time, also, connected with the Demilt Dispensary as attending physician.

In 1856 he removed to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he still resides, with a large and successful practice.

In 1859 he received the degree of A. M. (ad eundem) from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

In 1861 he was President of the New-York State Medical Society. For many years he has been a Fellow of the Academy of Medicine in New-York City.

He married, December 14, 1848, Miss Sarah O. Heydock, daughter of the late William T. Heydock, Esq., of Hanover, N. H.

PRESENT RESIDENCE,
SECOND MASSACHUSETTS REG'T.

The three years succeeding graduation were variously spent in the study of medicine, in teaching, and in miscellaneous pursuits.

In October, 1849, he entered the Theological Seminary at Andover, where he completed his regular course of professional study in September, 1852.

In December, 1853, he was ordained pastor of the Mather Church, at Jamaica Plains, Roxbury, Mass. In 1856 he was chosen a member of the Massachusetts Board of Education.

His well known ability as a statistician has made him a valued member of various historical societies in the United States and in Europe.

As Statistical Secretary of the General Association of Congregational Ministers, and especially as one of the editors of the Congregational Quarterly, which he assisted to establish in 1859, his services to the public have been widely acknowledged.

In 1862 he was chosen Chaplain of the Second Massachusetts Regiment, in which capacity he still serves in the Union army.

In April, 1863, he resigned his pastoral charge at Jamaica Plains, preferring to remain with his regiment in the field during the three years for which they were enlisted.

He married, in Boston, February 28, 1854, Miss Rebecca P. Putnam, daughter of Allen Putnam, Esq., of Salem, Mass.

He remained at Hanover during the fall after graduating, in attendance upon medical lectures, &c. The remainder of the first year was spent in teaching and in general study.

In October, 1847, he took charge of the Academy at Blue Hill, Me., where he taught successfully for seven years. His health being delicate, he resigned his position at Blue Hill, and spent the two following years in traveling through the British Provinces, "engaged in disseminating educational facilities." By this change of occupation his health was much improved; but being still unable to bear the confinement of a school, he purchased a small farm in Hampden and devoted himself to agriculture. There he still resides—is one of the Superintending School Committee of the town—and (January 1863) reports that he has so far recovered his health that he is able to teach for a few months at a time, and hopes at length to resume teaching as a permanent profession.

He married, December 18, 1849, Miss Sophia A. Clarke, of Brewer, Me.

ISAAC WILLIAM SMITH.

NAT. MAY 18, 1825,
HAMPSTEAD, N. H.

PRESENT RESIDENCE,
MANCHESTER, N. H.

After graduating he was engaged in teaching in his native town during portions of 1846-7.

In March, 1847, he commenced the study of law in the office of William Smith, Esq., of Lowell, Mass.

In April, 1848, he entered the office of Hon. Daniel Clark, in Manchester, N. H., where he completed his studies, and was admitted to the New-Hampshire Bar July 9, 1850. He at once opened an office in Manchester, where he still resides in the successful practice of his profession.

In 1851-2 he was in partnership with Hon. Herman Foster, of Manchester, and from 1857 to 1862, with Hon. Daniel Clark. For one year he was Clerk of the Common Council of Manchester. In 1851-2 he was a member and President of the same Board. Appointed, April, 1854, City Solicitor, and reappointed in 1855.

In July, 1855, he received the appointment of Justice of the Police Court, but resigned, in 1857, to engage more fully in the practice of his profession.

In 1859 he was elected to the House of Representatives of New-Hampshire from the city of Manchester, and reelected in 1860.

He was elected in 1862 to the State Senate from the Third District, and reelected in 1863.

In February, 1863, he was appointed United States Assessor for the Second District of New-Hampshire, under the Internal Revenue Law.

He married, August 16, 1854, Miss Amanda W. Brown, daughter of Hon. Hiram Brown, of Manchester.

JOHN MERCHANT STURTEVANT.

NAT. MARCH 26, 1825, }
MATTAPoisETT, Ms. }

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

Soon after graduating he entered the Blind Institution at South Boston, as teacher, where he remained, with the exception of a few months, for five years.

In 1851 he removed to Nashville, Tennessee, having been appointed Principal of the Tennessee State Institution for the Blind. This position he continues to fill with fidelity and success.

By a recent letter from a member of his family, we have gathered the following additional facts :

"Mr. S. remained in Nashville during all the time that city was under rebel sway, and although he was known to be a Union man, was never molested, in person or property. His services as Principal of the Institution for the Blind were so highly esteemed by the Trustees of that School, that, although he was avowedly Union, he was not dismissed."

"The Institution at Nashville is temporarily suspended. The building, having been taken for a hospital by the Confederate Government in November, 1861, and after being occupied as such by both rebels and federals, until September, 1862, was demolished by the United States authorities as standing in the way of one of their forts."

"Mr. S. is now engaged (June, 1863) in the attempt to secure compensation for its destruction, with the view of reestablishing the School, or at least providing for some orphan blind children who were made homeless by its suspension."

He married, June 18, 1855, Miss Eliza W. Robinson, daughter of Samuel Robinson, Esq., of Winchester, Tenn.

SANBORNTON, N. H. }

{ PRESENT RESIDENCE,
MINNEAPOLIS, MIN.

Weeks was an exception to the rest of the Class, in the fact that he was a married man before entering College.

After graduating he remained three years in Hanover, having charge of Moor's Charity School.

In September, 1849, he resigned his position at Hanover, and in December of the same year was appointed Usher in the Mather School, South Boston, Mass., where he remained seven years.

In the summer of 1856 he removed to Sanbornton, N. H., for the benefit of his wife's health, but the change proved of no avail. She sank under a pulmonary disease of long standing, and died shortly after the removal.

From 1856 to 1863 we have little knowledge of our classmate's whereabouts. We have, however, recently learned that he is in Minneapolis, Minnesota, where he has married again, and is settled in the practice of law.

"Stat sua cuique dies."

VIRGIL.

JOHN LANGDON WADLEIGH TILTON.

He was a native of Meredith, N. H., and was born in January, 1812. Tilton, or as he was universally called in College, from his association with the "Dartmouth Phalanx," "Captain Tilton," was by many years the senior member of our Class. He was a man of mature intellect and of much knowledge of the world, differing from most students at the time of their entering College, in his larger previous experience of men and things. This fact naturally added to his influence and gave weight to his opinions. Tilton was a man of much dignity of bearing, of reserved manners, and cautious in his confidences, but, withal, of kindly disposition and noble impulses.

Law was his chosen profession, and his reading, even in College, was directed chiefly to that end. After graduation he entered the law office of D. S. Richardson, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., where he remained until January, 1849. He then sailed for California, in the bark "Oxford," making the passage round Cape Horn, and reaching San Francisco in August following. Thence he proceeded directly to the mines; but his powers of endurance proved unequal to the toils and privations of a miner's life, and a few weeks only had passed when he was seized with brain fever of a grave type. From this attack he never fully recovered, although, after lingering for several months, he rallied sufficiently to allow of his return home. He was fortunate in securing the services and the companionship of friends, who sailed with him from San Francisco, December 9, 1849, and after a journey of three tedious months, he again reached Lowell (March 11, 1850), where, however, he survived but a single week. His relatives and friends enjoyed only the satisfaction of attending upon his last moments, while he was scarcely able to appreciate their kindness, or even to express a consciousness of their presence.

Tilton died March 18, 1850, aged 38 years. His death was noticed at some length in the Lowell papers, with appropriate sketches of his life and character. During the year before leaving Lowell he had become more extensively known in the city than is usual with those who are merely law students. He entered into the political contest of 1848 with characteristic ardor, and was chosen President of the Cass and Butler Club in that city. His name also stood at the head of the Democratic representative ticket at the State election for that season. Personally he had many friends, and was constantly adding to their number.

Under great discouragements Tilton had made his way to the threshold of professional life. For several years after he had become of age he had labored as a mechanic to procure the means of a better education, and his journey to California was undertaken for the sake of adding to his resources, for the purchase of a law library, and for securing other professional advantages; but his plans were destined never to be realized, and at the outset of his career he was cut off by a mysterious Providence.

GEORGE WHITEFIELD McKEEN.

He was the only son of the Rev. Silas McKeen, of Bradford, Vt., where he was born, January 26, 1827. He was tenderly and most carefully reared, and his early childhood gave promise of unusual intellect, and of rare sweetness of temper—a promise which his advancing youth and maturer years fully confirmed. At the age of 10 he united with the Congregational Church, of which his father was pastor, and his preparation for College was with the full purpose of entering the ministry.

McKeen joined our Class at the beginning of Sophomore year, and his rank as a scholar during the three years of his College life was always among the first. His sensitive nature deterred him from a general and an indiscriminate acquaintance, but he attached himself to his chosen friends with a peculiar ardor. With strangers his intercourse was reserved but courteous, and his bearing toward all was marked with the modest dignity of a Christian gentleman. During Senior year McKeen's health was delicate. He suffered from dyspepsia, and from a degree of nervous debility which at times interrupted his attendance upon College duties.

It was not, however, until a year after leaving College that he became hopelessly an invalid. He then abandoned his cherished hopes of the ministry, and with singular earnestness, devoted his wanling energies to the study of medicine. The winter of 1849-50 he spent in New-York City in attendance upon medical lectures, but his still more rapid decline compelled a return to his home in Bradford, where, after lingering for a few weeks, he expired on the 9th of June, 1850, aged 23 years.

In an obituary notice of McKeen, by Dr. Lord, published in the Vermont Chronicle, he says: "It was merciful that God permitted him to die at home—the much loved home, where a sainted mother had nursed and led him in the path of life—where an honored father could doubly minister to him in his extremity—where loving sisters could wipe the death damp from his brow, and bid him Godspeed in the swelling of Jordan. They saw him triumph in Christ—they heard his thanksgivings—they expect to meet him in the resurrection."

The funeral services of McKeen were performed on the 12th of June, in the presence of great numbers, and his mortal remains lie beside those of his relatives in the family burial ground at Bradford.

EDWARD ALTAMONT PARTRIDGE.

He was born March 20, 1826. It is presumed that his native place was Norwich, Vt., but this fact is not certainly ascertained. He was a nephew of the late well known Capt. Alden Partridge, of the Norwich University, and for a short time previous to his entering Dartmouth, had been a Cadet in that institution.

In College, Partridge was a ready, fluent, and exact scholar, and a man of most amiable and gentle disposition. His associates were few, from the fact that he spent most of his time, when not occupied in College duties, with his friends in Norwich.

On graduating, Partridge delivered the Greek oration, which was much commended.

After leaving College he adopted the profession of a civil engineer, and until 1850, was employed in the construction of the Sullivan Railroad, in New-Hampshire.

March 24, 1852, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Cook, of Claremont, N. H.

In 1853 he was engaged professionally in Pennsylvania, and afterward removed to Buffalo, N. Y., in which city he died, after a short illness, May 23, 1855, aged 29 years.

The above items were furnished, in part, by Classmate McClure, who resided in Claremont; was long intimate with Partridge, and was the only member of the Class who was present, both at his marriage and his funeral.

Who could then foresee that McClure's own obituary would be the next to be written?

The remains of Partridge lie buried in Claremont, N. H., where also his widow resides, with her only child, a daughter (Mary Elizabeth), born in 1853.

MILON CRAIG McCLURE.

He was born in Acworth, N. H., January 7, 1819. Of his childhood we know but little. He was fitted for College at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, and at once took a high rank in the Class. For mathematics he had a special fondness—often devoting to Calculus and Analytical Geometry hours which most students prefer to spend in recreation, or in reading which requires less mental effort. He used the libraries much, reading with care the standard authors. He was exact rather than quick, but thorough and faithful as a student, and whatever he did was always well done.

After graduating McClure taught two years in Claremont Academy. His pupils will bear witness to his fidelity and his thorough scholarship. He then studied law in the office of P. C. Freeman, Esq., of Claremont; was admitted to the New-Hampshire Bar July 4, 1849, and became a partner of Mr. Freeman, with whom he remained until his death.

In 1855 he was elected a member of the State Council, and re-elected the following year.

In 1857-8 he represented the town of Claremont in the State Legislature.

Though not lacking in manly ambition, he did not seek excitement. In April, 1858, he says, writing to a Classmate: "I have been quite successful in business, and the current of my life has flowed so smoothly that I have scarcely perceived with what rapidity time is passing."

In the midst of his professional usefulness and success he was seized with typhoid fever, and after a brief illness of five days he died (September 1, 1860), aged 41 years. His funeral was conducted with Masonic honors, and his remains were conveyed to Acworth, where they now rest with his kindred.

McClure was never married. From his native sensitiveness and reserve many of his social qualities passed unappreciated, both in College and in his subsequent intercourse with the world; but within his chosen circle of friends the rare excellencies, both of mind and heart, were freely manifested. He was genial, but not familiar; witty, but never frivolous; ready in conversation, but never rambling; sure of his ground in argument, but never dogmatic.

McClure was a profound lawyer, and his caution, sagacity, and honesty, made him ever a safe counsellor. His accurate knowledge of law always commanded the attention of the Court, while his uniform courtesy won for him the esteem and confidence of his professional brethren.

Thus, in every duty, in every department of life where he was called to serve, his work was well performed. True to himself, he could be false to no man.

SUPPLEMENT.

WILLIAM HENRY BARTLETT,

SALISBURY, N. H.,

Known Freshman year as "Little Tutor"—left College in the fall of Sophomore year, and, after a year's absence, returned to the next Class, and graduated in 1847. He studied law with Hon. Ira Perley, of Concord, N. H.; was admitted to the Bar in 1851, and opened an office in that city, where he still resides. In 1861, while in the successful practice of his profession, he was appointed Associate Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of New-Hampshire.

He married Miss Caroline Baker, sister of Ex-Governor Baker, of Concord.

HORACE BRYANT,

MERIDEN, N. H.,

"Bryant First"—left College at the end of Freshman year, and has since died.

GEORGE FRANKLIN BRYANT,

HAVERHILL, N. H.,

"Bryant Second"—was with us but a short time. He left College on account of ill health, during Freshman fall term, and died at home shortly afterward.

CHARLES HARROD BROWN,

HAVERHILL, MASS.,

Generally called "The Deacon,"—left College in the spring of 1845, and now resides in Haverhill, Mass.

---

JOHN BUTLER,

MOULTONBOROUGH, N. H.,

Left College during Senior spring term. He was engaged for several years as teacher in one of the Boston Grammar Schools, and has since been reported as dead. We would be glad to hear the report contradicted. John Butler will be remembered as the basso profundo of the Handel Society.

[January, 1863. We since learn that he is living — a lawyer in Boston.]

HARVEY CARPENTER,

HANOVER, N. H.,

Left College during Freshman year on account of ill health.

---

WALTER GILMAN CURTIS,

HOPKINTON, N. H.,

Left College during Sophomore fall term and went to North-Carolina, where he still resides as a practicing physician. His medical degree was taken in Philadelphia.

THOMAS DAVIE,

BOSTON, MASS.,

Entered College Sophomore fall term, and left at the end of Sophomore year. He was for some time located as a successful teacher at White Plains, Brunswick County, Va., and was last heard from in 1848. "Tom Davie" was a fellow of peculiar disposition, but of quick intellect, and great independence of speech and bearing. He is remembered with much interest, and if alive, we would be glad to hear from him.

TIMOTHY DUSTIN,

CLAREMONT, N. H.,

Was admitted to College, and his name entered on the catalogue of 1842; but he never joined the Class.

---

GEORGE M. FLANDERS,

PLAINFIELD, N. H.,

Left College at the end of the fall term of Sophomore year, studied law, and practiced in Manchester, N. H. He now resides in New-York City.

ADONIJAH W. HOWE,

JAFFREY, N. H.,

Left College during Freshman year. He studied medicine, and took the degree of M. D. at Dartmouth, in 1850.

JOHN W. HUNT,

PERU, N. Y.,

Had his name entered in the catalogue of 1842; but he never joined the Class.

---

HEMAN HUMPHREY JOHNSTON,

SUMMER HILL, N. Y.,

Left College in the spring of Sophomore year, on account of ill health, and died at home, in 1845, of pulmonary consumption. He was a fine scholar and genial companion. His early death was mourned by the whole College.

---

WILLIAM LAMBSON JOHNSON,

SALEM, N. J.,

Was killed by the bursting of a gun, at his home, in New-Jersey, during Freshman winter.

[Vide obituary notice in The Dartmouth.]

---

HENRY BENJAMIN JUDKINS,

BILLERICA, MASS.,

"Old Jud," as he was generally called in College, left the Class in the fall term of Sophomore year. He returned to the next Class after an interval of a year. Again left, and commenced the study of law in Lowell, Mass. He graduated with honor at the Harvard Law School, in 1849, and engaged in the practice of his profession, in Springfield, Mass. For many years we have been unable to trace him.

THOMAS LEVERETT NELSON,

HAVERHILL, N. H.,

Left College in Sophomore fall term, and entered the Sophomore Class in Vermont University, where he graduated in 1846. After several years of experience as a civil engineer, he studied law, and now practices his profession in Worcester, Mass. He married, in December 1857, Miss Anna Hayward, of Medford, Mass.

ROBERT P. NICHOLS,

LITCHFIELD, N. H.,

Left College during Freshman year.

BENJAMIN EVANS PORTER,

SUTTON, N. H.,

Left College during Freshman year. He was in the Mexican war, and has since died.

JOHN SYLVESTER REDDINGTON,

SUTTON, N. H.,

Died of typhoid fever, at Hanover, during Sophomore fall term, October 11, 1843. The event is well remembered.

[For obituary notice, vide The Dartmouth.]

MOODY BAILEY SMITH,

HOPKINTON, N. H.,

“Smith First”—left College during Sophomore fall term, and went South, where he studied law. He married, and is engaged in the successful practice of law, in Wilmington, North-Carolina.

JOSIAH STEVENS, 3d,

CONCORD, N. H.,

“Stevens First”—left College during Freshman spring term, and now lives in Concord. In 1861 he was Major of the Second New-Hampshire Regiment of Volunteers. In 1862 he was appointed Colonel of the Ninth New-Hampshire Regiment, but his health failed, and he was compelled to leave the service. He married Miss H. A. Head, of Hooksett, N. H., in 1851.

MOSES TYLER STEVENS,

ANDOVER, MASS.,

“Stevens Second”—left College during Freshman year. He is now a manufacturer in North Andover, Mass.—a man of family and of substance. He will be remembered as one of the four worthies who roomed, during Freshman year, at Mr. Comings’—or, in the classic words of Judkins, the historian of the times,—“qui in aulâ venientis habitant.” He is a gentleman of high respectability and tried integrity.

ROBERT STINSON,

NEW-LONDON, N. H.,

Entered College Sophomore fall term, but remained only a single term.

ARTHUR TRAIN,

WASHINGTON, N. H.,

Left College during Freshman year. Studied medicine in Keene, N. H. Graduated in Philadelphia, in 1848, and settled in Kanawha County, Va. He afterward removed to Ohio.
